Arabian Peninsula

Tourism in the Arab World covers various activities such as travel to deserts, skydiving, hot air balloon tours, trekking, sporting events, shopping, visit to historical sites and museums, music festivals, medical tourism and MICE. Arabian Peninsula countries are rich in cultural heritages as other parts of the world.

The Desert

The austere allure of the desert has attracted Western travellers to Arabia for centuries. Marco Polo and T.E. Lawrence are among many famous travellers beguiled by the beauty of the barren landscapes and the challenge they suggest to body and soul. Thankfully, modern travellers no longer need risk life and limb to encounter the wilderness as roads and camps make encounters with the desert possible for all.

Urban landscapes

For those looking for a dynamic urban experience, the Gulf cities are the place to find it. With high incomes per capita, elegant towers, opulent hotels and eccentric malls, these cities offer the "pleasure domes" of the modern world.

Legendary hospitality

The essence of the Arabian Peninsula lies in its people: good-natured haggling in souks, cursing on long journeys, sharing of sweet tea on the edge of wild places. Unifying all, there's Islam, a way of life, the call to prayer carried on an inland breeze, a gentle hospitality extended towards strangers. And this is what many travellers most remember of their visit to the region - the ancient tradition of sharing "bread and salt" and of ensuring safe passage, albeit given a modern context. Visitors can expect friendly exchange as equally in supermarkets as in remote desert villages.

Cultural riches

It's hard to think of Arabia without conjuring the Queen of Sheba holding court at Ma'rib in Yemen; camel caravans bearing frankincense from Dhofar in Oman; dhows laden with pearls from Dilmun; the ruins of empire in Saudi Arabia's Madain Saleh. The caravans and the dhows may be plying different trades these days, but the lexicon of The Thousand and One Nights that brought Scheherazade's exotic, vulnerable world to the West, still helps define the Peninsula today. Visit a fort, barter in a souk or step into labyrinthine alleyways and you'll discover the perennial magic of Arabia.

As SkyPalm Travel & Tours, situated in East Africa just below Arabian Peninsula; we are strategically located along Indian Ocean and on the major routes between Africa and Arabian Peninsula. Also our strong connections in Turkey provide us alternative routes and facility options for Arabian Peninsula destinations.
